Simplify Your Workers' Comp Process

When an employee is injured on the job, managing the workers' compensation process can quickly become complicated. Physicians Quality Care OCCMed makes it easier.

From treating the injured employee and determining causation to coordinating follow-up care, communicating with your team and providing the documentation you need, we help guide you through the entire process.

That's why it's important to include Physicians Quality Care OCCMed on your workers' compensation provider panel.

Our clinics are conveniently open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., seven days a week, for non-emergency, work-related injuries.

A Streamlined Process

Our physicians and nurses understand OSHA's medical regulations and the impact recordable injuries can have on your business. We know what questions to ask, how to evaluate the cause of an injury and how to develop a treatment plan focused on helping the employee safely return to work.

At Physicians Quality Care OCCMed, a workers' compensation specialist works directly with your human resources team throughout the process. We can help explain the injury; coordinate appointments, testing and referrals; and provide the documentation needed to authorize treatment and meet OSHA requirements.

In other words, we take the headache out of workers' compensation claims.

Flu shots are ready, schedule them today

Flu shots have arrived, and Physicians Quality Care OCCMed is providing them for your employees at your convenience.

The CDC recommends the flu shot for everyone six months and older and that people get their flu immunizations by the end of October–before flu season typically starts.

The 2026-27 flu vaccine is designed to address expected strains in the flu this upcoming season. Protecting employees from the flu not only helps keep them healthy, it also lessens time away from work because of illness.

Create a workplace safety program

Safety programs benefit employees as well as employers, and they are just as important as any other area of an organization. They protect employees from getting hurt, and they prevent loss time in the workplace.

A strong safety program has …

- Commitment from management, which should lead by example by practicing safe behaviors.
- Employee involvement. Employees are encouraged to bring up safety concerns, help address those concerns and get positive feedback from the boss.
- Worksite analysis. Health and safety hazards are evaluated continually, and the worksite is up-to-date on all OSHA requirements.
- Hazard prevention. Management and employees work together to identify and eliminate hazards.
- Training. The employer provides ongoing education to review safety protocols. Both management and employees know what to do if an emergency or unsafe condition occurs in the workplace.
